Butler Ames attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received his Master’s degree in 1896. He invented numerous mechanical and electrical devices and was an early and active advocate of both the automobile and the airplane.

A part of an invention
Apparatus employed in flight through the air
Portable support for invalids
The Ames Lamp with Butler Ames, the inventor